

Since now the day has reached its close

(Nun sich der Tag geendet hat)

Johann Friedrich Herzog (c. 1670)

Translation composite

Adam Krieger (1667)

Arr. by Johann Sebastian Bach (1685-1750)

Engraved by Alexander Kravchuk

Soprano

Since now the day has reached its close, And sun-light shines no

Alto

Since now the day_ has reached its close, And sun-light shines no

Tenor

Since now the day_ has_ reached its close, And sun-light shines no

Bass

Since now the_ day has reached its close, And sun-light shines no_

S

more, In sleep the toil-worn find re - pose, And all who wept be -

A

more, In sleep the toil-worn find re - pose, And all_ who wept be - - -

T

more, In sleep the toil-worn find re - pose, And all who wept be - - -

B

more, In sleep the_ toil-worn find re - pose, And all who wept be - - -